MUGWORT, MOUNTAIN

Artemisia franserioides

Family: Asteraceae

Names: Altamisa, Ajenjo, Estafiate, ragged sagebrush, ragweed sagebrush

Description: This plant grows in the high mountains, in the moist shade of spruce stands. Grows to an arching two feet with an abundance of tiny orbs of white/green flowers. Although the plant is very slender and easily lost in a forest green floor, its large, gently and deeply lobed leaves are very easy to spot. Lovely, sweet fragrance.

Medicinal Uses: As a cold and flu medicine it is drunk cold to settle the stomach, and hot to bring on and to reduce fever. It also is brewed as a bitter tonic for stomach pains and acidosis from greasy and rancid foods. Also used for diarrhea.

Dosage: Cold infusion or standard infusion (depending on use): 2-4 fluid ounces up to 3 times a day

Toxicity: Not for use during pregnancy

References: